

Ziplines Iceland

Jonas Dahle, Selma Ýr Ívarsdóttir, Luna Laine, Olivia Hämäläinen,
Theodor Brennvik

What we did

- ▶ We interviewed the owner of Ziplines Iceland, Samuel Alexandersson
- ▶ We also went ziplining

The policy of the company

- ▶ Their goal is to leave no marks in the area
- ▶ They used existing paths and everything they did in the area is reversible.
- ▶ They spoil nature as little as possible and inform tourists not to litter

A photo of us and Samuel

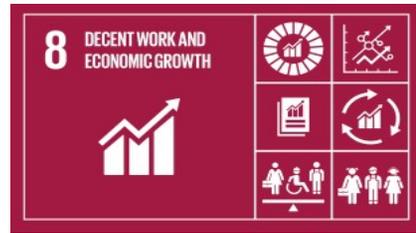

Sustainability and tourism

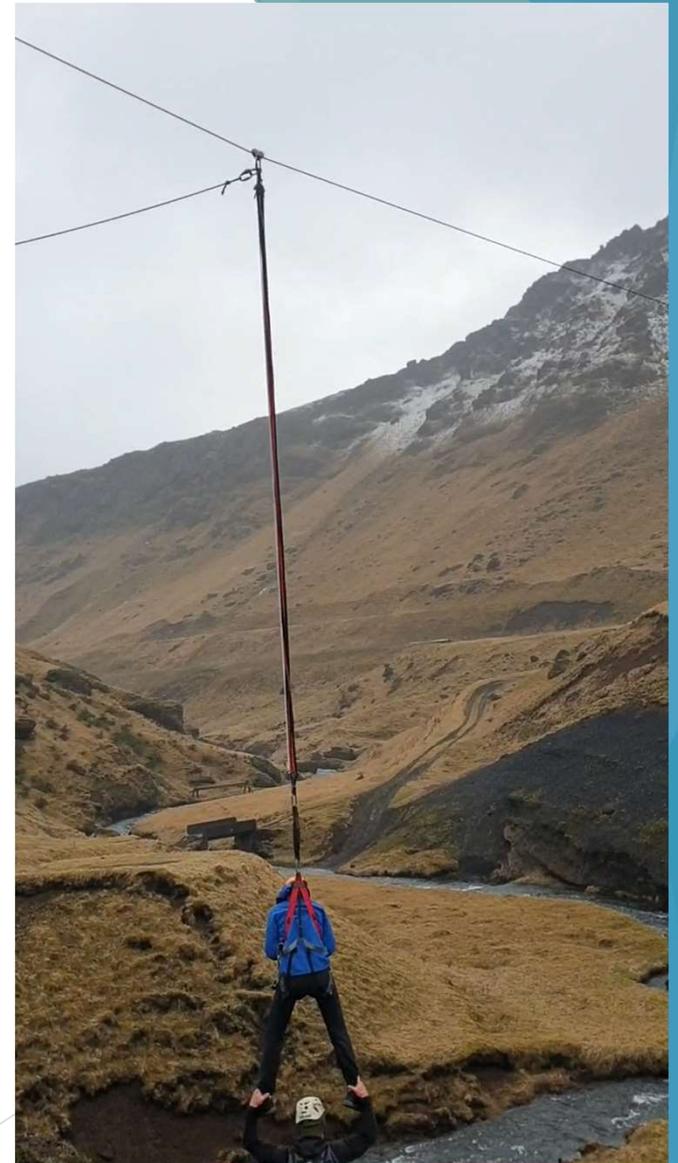

- Recommend visiting other companies like restaurants and shops.
- Help the other companies out, improving economy.
- Prevent littering and spoiling of nature

Our experience

- The guides were polite, in a good mood and very helpful
- They answered all the questions
- Nice and instructive
- Safety was a big concern, and we always felt safe
- It is an experience for everyone
- We didn't go the whole tour because of the weather, but it was a good experience
- 🤔 As you can see, Olivia is having a lot of fun

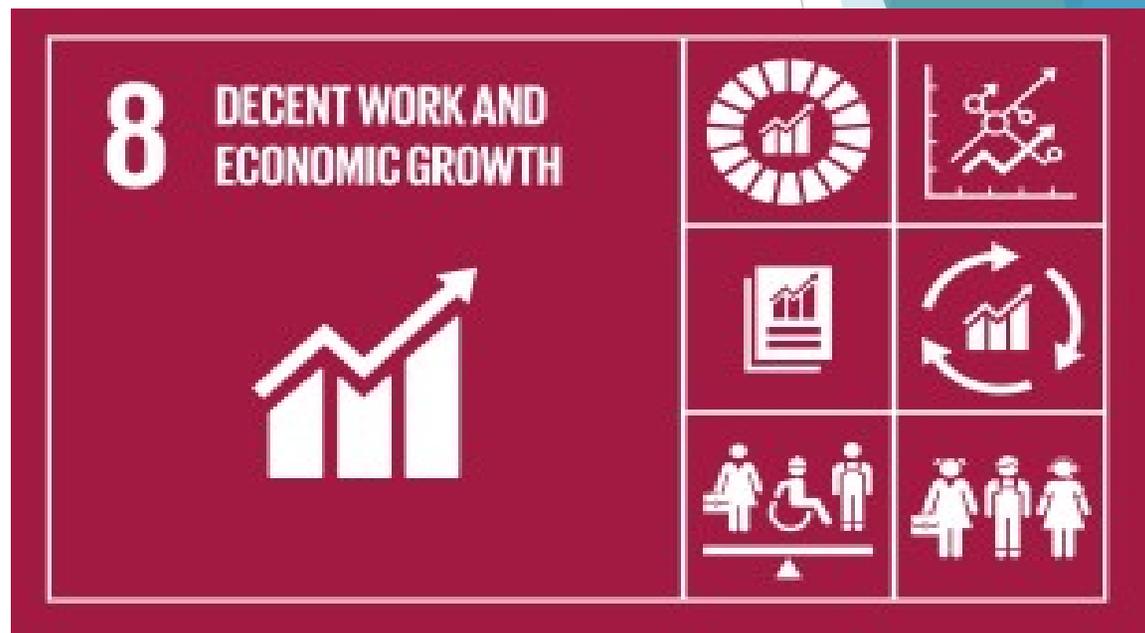

Skaftárstofa - visiting center

- ▶ Focal point for tourists
- ▶ Part of Vatnajökull national park
- ▶ Informs tourists about environment and history in Iceland

UN Global Goal 8

- ▶ The visitor centers are following the green-step program, which is an Icelandic certification.
- ▶ Provides customers to local businesses
- ▶ Inform about environment
- ▶ Finance tourism in Iceland

What we learned from Skaftárstofa visitor center

- ▶ Helping other businesses out
- ▶ Ensuring environmental protection
- ▶ Make Iceland available to locals as well
- ▶ The visitor center give directions and ideas on what to do in Iceland.

Glacier adventure

- ▶ A company selling experiences - guided trips on glaciers
- ▶ Based in Höfn í Hornafirði

UN Global Goal 8

- ▶ Member of the official quality and environmental system for Icelandic tourism, VAKINN
- ▶ Glacier adventure fulfils goal 8 by providing workspaces for all kinds of people, ethnicities and professions.
- ▶ Promote tourism in the local area

